

Certificate in Information Security Management Principles (BCS)

What is it?

Information security management gives you a framework to protect your company and customer data, and reduce the threat of security breach. This certificate is designed by the BCS Professional Certification (formerly ISEB) to help IT professionals learn about and make the case for managing information security effectively within their organization. This is your first step towards gaining a recognized BCS Professional Certificate.

Why do I need it?

Your business relies on information. And the Certificate in Information Security Management Principles helps you understand how to protect this information. Safeguarding your company and customer data will also allow you to operate within legal and regulatory boundaries. And with security controls and policies in place, you will gain the trust of customers whose information you hold. Guide your business towards implementing a system compliant with ISO/IEC 27001, the international information security standard.

How will I benefit?

If you understand the scope and importance of information security, you will also understand how it can impact the way you manage company and customer data – for the better. You can identify and remove threats to your information security and improve your approach to business continuity. And with a system in place, you can demonstrate robust data protection tailored to your business, building customer trust and empowering you to grow and innovate.

What will I learn?

This five-day course will introduce the concept of information security management and reaffirm its importance. As an experienced IT professional you will learn to confidently present the business case for information security, understanding the challenges you face and how to overcome them. Learn how to comply with legislation and regulation, making effective information security management a reality for your business.
