The growing expectation of the stakeholders in information transparency and the increased importance in risk management nowadays raised the market need in ESG (Environmental, Social and Governance) disclosure. General public and investors are looking beyond traditional metrics but information revealing company's management culture, risk profile, sustainability, governance and other characteristics when it comes to identifying the quality of a company and making investment decision.

In response to market challenges, The Hong Kong Stock Exchange (HKEx) is working on revising the ESG Reporting Guide, and in this regard, is planning on publishing a consultation paper later this year proposing an upgrade of the reporting obligation from the current voluntary to "comply or explain".

To support HKEx's initiatives and to facilitate the implementation of the new ESG reporting in the market, BSI, a Royal Charter company known as the UK's National Standards Body and founding member of ISO created the majority of the world's most renowned standards, will organize a seminar on Towards Stakeholders Trust-building: Comply with the latest HKEx ESG disclosure requirements to provide all ESG professionals to understand:

- The proposed new requirements of the HKEx ESG Reporting Guide;
- The challenges in executing the ESG report;
- The information and tools required to carry out your ESG report and;
- "How-to" comply

Enroll now to have a comprehensive understanding on the revision of the HKEx ESG reporting guidelines for a better ESG performance and an enhanced view of corporate risk.
