

Good Distribution Practice for Medical Devices Training Course

What is it?

The 'Good Distribution Practice for Medical Device in Singapore' is a regulatory framework initiated by SAC (Singapore Accreditation Council) to support the Health Products Act 2007 by HSA (Health Science Authority)

GDPMDS is a mandatory audit for any organizations involved with importing, wholesale and distribution of medical devices prior to their license application.

Why do I need it?

In order to provide compliance to GDPMDS, organizations will require more than just quality manuals. Organization needs to include appropriate procedures, correct processes / facilities / equipment, as well as clear and timely documentation, to credibly demonstrate the consistency of quality assurance. These need to be overseen by a suitably qualified personnel which understands the requirements of the GDPMDS standard.

How will I benefit?

GDPMDS will help your organization to regulate each stage of the distribution chain of medical devices. You will be able to know how to implement and fulfill the requirements of GDPMDS throughout your trading process from manufacturer to wholesaler to industry and private customer. This will enable your organization to get certified to GDPMDS and continue trading on the highly profitable medical devices industry.

What will I learn?

BSI's "GDPMDS" training course is designed to equip participants with the knowledge of medical devices fundamentals, GDPMDS requirements audit experience sharing and the implementation of GDPMDS in medical device manufacturing firms. This training course also helps medical device professionals gain skills on how to prepare an execute an internal audit, and how they can do corrective and follow up actions to improve their organization's GDPMDS efforts.
