ISO/FDIS 50001:2018 Transition Training Course

Essential information about the course

The world's first international Energy Management Systems (EnMS) standard is currently being updated. ISO 50001 can help your organization establish the systems and processes necessary to continually improve energy performance, including energy use, energy consumption and energy efficiency.

If you're already familiar with ISO 50001:2011 but want to find out about the anticipated changes that lie ahead, this course introduces you to the new ISO high level structure for management system standards and explores the changes from ISO 50001:2011. It will help you identify gaps in your current energy management system and start planning your transition to the revised standard.

And, because you've attended the course, you will receive a complimentary update when the final standard is published.

If you have previously attended one of our ISO/IEC 27001:2013, ISO 9001:2015, ISO 14001:2015, or ISO/DIS/FDIS 45001 transition courses, you may opt out of the morning session of this course, which covers the high level structure.

Please also know that the afternoon session is based on our ISO/FDIS 50001 Seminar, but includes practical activities for a deeper understanding. If you've attended the seminar, you do not need to attend this course. However should you still wish to do so, you'll be entitled to a discount.
