

ISO/IEC 27001 Information Security Management Systems Lead Auditor

What is it?

An ISO/IEC 27001 information security management system gives you a best practice framework to improve data protection and remove the threat of security breach. And effective information security management is maintained when the system is regularly monitored, or audited. To do this well, an in-depth understanding of the ISO 2700 series empowers you to take on the responsibility of lead auditor. This is your next step towards independent information security expertise.

Why do I need it?

Audits are critical to continually improving your ISO/IEC 27001 information security management system. As your business grows and technology evolves, so must the way you protect your data to maintain ISO/IEC 27001 compliance. Independent and third party audits allow experts to assess all your information security processes and controls. And their findings help you identify existing or potential threats to customer or company data, helping you to continually improve the way you manage information security.

How will I benefit?

If you understand the scope of the ISO/IEC 27001 standard, you will also understand how it can impact the way you manage your company and customer data – for the better. And by auditing your information security management system you will demonstrate that you have a robust data protection framework in place. You will also build a culture of security awareness within your organization, maintaining compliance with ISO/IEC 27001 and strengthening customer trust in your ability to protect their data.

What will I learn?

This five-day course will not only consolidate your knowledge of ISO/IEC 27001, it will also help you understand the standard's requirements from an auditor's point of view. You'll learn to plan, conduct and report on an audit, improving your interview techniques, reviewing security threats and vulnerabilities, and identifying the correct controls to manage them.
