ISO/IEC 27001 Information Security Management Systems Lead Implementer

What is it?

ISO/IEC 27001 information security management provides a controlled approach to protecting your company data. It provides a framework for you to remove the threat of security breach by measuring and reducing information security risks. If you have completed our introduction to ISO/IEC 27001 or implementing ISO/IEC 27001 training courses, you are now ready to lead the implementation of an information security management system in your organization.

Why do I need it?

Your organization has committed to implementing ISO/IEC 27001 and this course is designed to give you the skills to lead the implementation process. You will learn to apply the requirements of ISO/IEC 27001 to your business and create an implementation plan. You will also become confident writing security policies and guiding colleagues in using the key processes and procedures – defining their responsibilities and leading them through assessment of your ISO/IEC 27001 information security management system.

How will I benefit?

If you understand the scope of the ISO/IEC 27001 standard, you will also understand how it can impact the way you manage your company and customer data – for the better. And information security management system allows you to demonstrate that you have robust data protection policies in place throughout your business, building customer trust and empowering you to innovate and grow.

What will I learn?

This five-day course will help you review your knowledge of the ISO/IEC 27001 standard so you can develop an in-depth understanding of information security. Our experts will then guide you in applying this practically through policy writing, identifying risks and their impacts, establishing security controls and identifying gaps between current procedures and ISO/IEC 27001 requirements. We'll cover incident management, business continuity, security awareness and the certification process, making sure your implementation plan is a success.
