

Five emerging trends at work to consider in relation to Occupational Health & Safety

More subcontractors and temporary workers

Growing use of technology in every aspect of work

Social media and the importance of protecting your brand reputation

Increased smart working and more home-based workers

An aging workforce

The way we work is constantly evolving. Whether it's due to developments in technology, changes in demographics or the influence of globalization. Organizations need to be resilient, responsive and adapt to change, particularly with respect to occupational health and safety.
