

Associate Consultant Programme

Looking for help embedding standards in your organization?

BSI is the business standards company that can help organizations like yours make excellence a habit.

With our Associate Consultant Programme (ACP), you gain independent advice to develop your management systems.

At BSI, our training teams transfer the knowledge your people need to understand and embed our standards into your organization. However as we also offer assessment or certification as you might refer to it, this means we can't consult with you directly. It would be like us being both your driving examiner and your instructor...

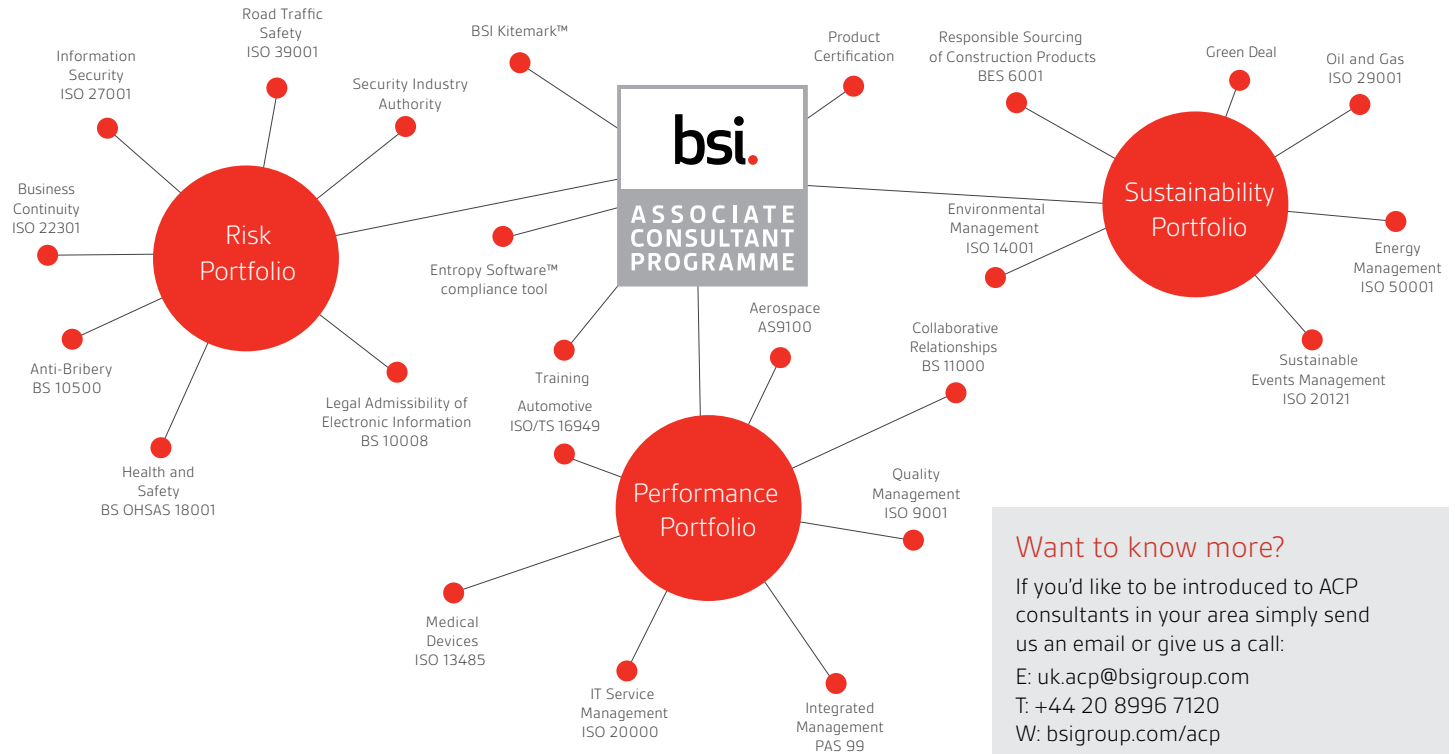

So, with this in mind, our Associate Consultant Programme (ACP) connects you with independent consultants in your region who can give you the consultancy support you need and we maintain our impartiality as an independent certification body.

We don't represent, recommend or certify these consultants, we simply put you in touch. But we do know our 200 ACP members across the UK have extensive experience of working with certified management systems. They can help you get to where you want to be as efficiently as possible with the standards shown to the right.

Our ACP members work with you to embed industry best practice into your business.

Did you know we helped shape the original standards that gave way to ISO 9001, ISO 14001 and OHSAS 18001 to name but three?
