ISO 45001: Occupational health and safety management – one year on

It’s one year since ISO 45001 was published. The first international management system standard for occupational health and safety.

BSi clients in over 27 countries have achieved certification to ISO 45001.

Over 13,000 delegates have attended BSI training courses to gain the knowledge to make the most of ISO 45001 in their organizations.

Over 4,200 copies of ISO 45001 have been sold on the BSI Shop.

The benefits of investing in health and wellbeing in the workplace:

- 44% Better employee morale and engagement
- 35% A healthier and more inclusive culture
- 31% Lower sickness absence

Sectors where ISO 45001 is commonly adopted include:

- Construction
- Manufacturing
- Transportation
- Oil and Gas
- Mining
- Healthcare
- Food

This is how our clients tell us they benefit by adopting ISO 45001:

- 77% It helps us comply with regulation
- 63% It helps us manage business risk
- 57% It inspires trust in our business

One year since publication of ISO 45001 isn’t it time to discover more about how ISO 45001 can help make your workplace healthier, your people safer, and your business more productive?
