ISO 22000 Capacity building programme

ISO 22000 Capacity building programme

To be successful in today's dynamic world, organizations need to embed resilience. And there are three fundamental elements to building a resilient organization: process, product and people. At BSI Training Academy we focus on helping clients all over the world build resilience through their people.

By combining the right training and support services through our capacity building programme, we help you invest in your people. We work with you to identify the needs of your organization so your teams gain the knowledge and skills required to embed management systems and drive sustainable growth.

What is capacity building?

Capacity building is a systematic approach of knowledge and skills development. It ensures an organization has the internal expertise to effectively implement change and improve performance.

ISO 22000 is an international standard that defines the requirements of a food safety management system (FSMS) covering all organizations in the food chain from "farm to fork." It maps out what you need to do to demonstrate your ability to control food safety hazards, ensuring that food is safe.

Embed ISO 22000 to show your commitment to actively managing food safety. A best practice framework, it'll help you embed robust processes and procedures, demonstrate compliance and improve stakeholder confidence to support business improvement and growth. So make sure your teams have the skills to implement and operate ISO 22000 effectively with our capacity building programme.

The benefits of capacity building:

- In-house expertise
- Enhanced flexibility and convenience
- Better engagement from your teams
- Added value to your organization

What our programme includes

Our capacity building programmes has two main phases – pre and post implementation. This involves a number of our training and support services, as well as implementation activities where you embed you learning and respond to any gaps identified. By working with BSI, your organization will gain the skills to confidently implement your management system and ensure it continually improves.

Phase one: pre-implementation

Phase two: post-implementation
