We developed the world's first international health & safety, environmental, quality and information security management system standards, used by thousands of organizations every day.

Last year we:

trained over 105,000 people about best practice for health & safety, environment, quality and information security management helped ensure our clients have robust quality management systems in place at over 49,000 sites which supports fair operating practices and increased consumer trust audited the health and safety management systems of over 14,000 sites, enabling people to come home safe from work each day supported more than 5,000 organizations keep people's information secure at more than 15,000 sites and throughout their value chains assessed the environmental management systems of over 22,000 sites, improving their resilience and that of the communities they operate in provided BSI Kitemark™ schemes for new industries including upholstered furniture

We help organizations be more resilient, supporting their people, processes and products, ultimately enabling a more resilient world for present and future generations. Visit bsigroup.com to find out more.
