

DGTRA takes an industry lead with BIM training and qualifications

Case study

DGTRA is a technology solutions consultancy specializing in project and business efficiency enhancement. Founded in Pune, India, in 2018, it is a systems integration and consulting partner to major built environment companies in India and across the world.

The challenge

As a trusted partner to major real estate, construction, infrastructure and manufacturing companies, DGTRA wanted independent validation of its extensive BIM knowledge. It also sought to further enhance and embed its consultants' existing high-level BIM skills, boosting their BIM credentials, their confidence and their careers. In addition, DGTRA was determined to show a lead to India's wider built environment industry. It wanted to drive up standards by encouraging the pursuit of rigorous BIM training and qualifications across the sector.

The solution

DGTRA recognized the advantages of BIM training and qualifications from BSI Academy.

As a specialist in BIM itself, DGTRA was aware of the increasing maturity of built environment standards in India – such as ISO 19650 for information management using BIM. Through its work with clients, it also knew of BSI's strong reputation for BIM training and qualifications.

Following an in-depth online training program from BSI Academy, seven DGTRA delegates achieved independently verified BIM qualifications.

"As an expert digital transformation consultancy, we recognize the value of BSI's BIM training and accreditations in delivering a consistent, high quality and efficient digital outcome across our projects globally"

The benefits

DGTRA is experiencing key benefits from its program with BSI Training. Its BIM qualifications:

- Consolidate the company's reputation as a skilled, trustworthy built environment industry partner;
- Demonstrate its strong commitment to providing its clients with world-class BIM expertise;
- Strengthen its competitiveness as a secure, high-quality systems integrator and solutions provider;
- Reinforce its position as a leading built environment consultancy in India and around the world.

Why BSI

BSI's longstanding expertise in BIM standards, training, and qualifications made it the ideal partner for DGTRA.
